PEACE TO BE DISCUSSED!

Emperors Nicholas and William Will Confer.

CZAR HAS SAILED

Meeting which May Have Already Taken Place Scheduled for Finnish Waters.

DIPLOMATISTS TAKEN BY SURPRISE

St. Petersburg, July 24.—Midnight—On the eve of the peace conference, and with a suddenness already disconcerting in diplomatic and court circles; the emperor left Peterhof Sunday on board the imperial yacht Polar Star for a conference with Emperor William, who is cruising on the Hohenzollern in Finnish waters. The first interview of the sovereigns was expected to take place Sunday evening off the Finnish port of Borgo, at the mouth of the Gulf of Finaldn, Finland, near Helsingfors. This will be followed by another interview to-morrow, after which Emperor Nicholas will r-turn to St Petersburg and Emperor William will continue his cruise.

The emperor is accompanied by his brother, Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch and a considerable suite, including Count Benkendorff, marshal of the court; General Baron W. Fredericks, minister of the imperial house; Count Heyden, chief of the imperial chancellorie; Admiral Biriloff, minister of marine; Captain Von Essen, who commanded the battleship Sevastopol at the siege of Fort Arthur; Captain Obagin, who commanded the Almaz, the only cruiser of Admiral Rojestvensky's fleet to reach Vladivostok after the battle of the sea of Japan; Captain Hintze; naval attache of the German embasse; also a party of courtiers and the emperor's escort of sailors and marines, with a guard commanded by Admiral Neelof.

It is noticeable that there is no representative of the Russian foreign office among the emperor's entourage, nor is the German ambassador, Count Alvensleben, on board the Polar Star. This gives color to a report that the meeting was arranged between the two emperors directly without recourse to the usual diplomatic channels, Emperor William suggesting the rendezvous by telegraph from Hernoesand, Sweden. The idea, the report says, met with the emperor's favor, but the final arrangements were only completed Saturday and some members of the imperial family were hastily summoned Saturday night to accompany his majesty.

Many diplomatists were taken completely by surprise by the news of Sunday; the rumors that a meeting was contemplated which were current since Friday having met with the flattest denials in official quarters and the Germam ambassador having stated that he knew nothing of any such plan being on foot.

Emperor William's action was instantly connected with the Moroccan question, and admiration for his political astuteness in recognizing his opportunities was expressed on all sides.

Like the last meeting between Emperor Nicholas and Emperor William at a hunting seat in Russian Poland, the Russian and eastern situations were discussed between the strokes of a game of billiards, and Russia was assured that she need have no anxiety regarding her western frontier while engaged with the Japanese, the conferences in the cabins of the Hohenzollern and the Polar Star will be entirely informal and probably without secretaries or other witnesses, unless perhaps Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch should be a participant.

The Trout Season.

There has been considerable difference of opinion, locally, as to the time that the season for catching trout in Pennsylvania closes, and in some manner the impression seems general that a change had been made last year limiting the time to July 15. One of the local fishermen wrote to State Fish Commissioner W. E. Meehan, and asked for an official announcement of the date for the close of the season, and was informed that there was no change in the law. As heretofore, trout can be legally taken until July 31.

A FORMER PHILIPSBURGER'S PERIL.

James H. Allport's Thrilling Experience With a Monster Snake.

The Barnesboro Star of Friday last refers as follows to a thrilling experience that happened a former Philipsburger:

"A short time ago Major James H. Allport the well known coal baron and trolley magnate, was traveling over his domain in Cambria county in company with Captain W. L. Malin the celebrated telephone expert. In going through a tract of timber the Major discovered a large blacksnake stretched full length upon the ground. Having a great aversion to any manner of the serpent species he picked up a club with the intention of killing it. The snake, however, started off at a rapid pace followed by the Major, who had almost overtaken it when the snake with lightning like rapidity threw its tail around a sapling and twined itself around the body of our friend, and in less time than it takes to tell, had him firmly bound.

After vainly trying to extricate himself, he called for Captain Malin, who found it necessary to kill the reptile in order to release his companion. After recovering from the excitement and fright they measured the snake and found it to be ten feet seven and three quarter inches long.

"It is said to be the largest snake ever killed in this section."

Further Particulars of the Death of Edward C. Austin.

In a previous issue we mentioned the death of Edward C. Austin, formerly of this place. The funeral occurred Tuesday July 18, at Tyrone. Services were conducted by Rev. George C. Gunter. Interment in the Tyrone cemetery.

The following further particulars are taken from the Tyrone Herald of recent date.

The accident which caused Mr. Austin's death happened Monday morning, July 10, at West Winfield, Butler county, where he was employed as engineer at the limestone operations of A. G. Morris. The fasteners of a belt struck an oil can in Mr. Austin's hand, forcing the spout of the can through his neck, and penetrating the roof of the mouth it caused a fracture which affected the brain. Inflammation set in and the injured man was taken to the Butler hospital for treatment, but four days after his admission there he passed away at 8:37 o'clock Monday evening.

Edwin C. Austin was aged 47 years. He was the son of Rev. James G. and Sarah Austin, both deceased, who were long residents of Tyrone. He was born at Boalsburg, Centre county, during his father's pastorate there in the United Presbyterian church. His father died in Tyrone in 1893 and his mother also died here in 1902. Four brothers survive him, James M. Austin, of West Winfield; Alfred F., William W. and Edgar E. Austin, of Tyrone.

As a young man, then residing in Tyrone, Mr. Austin entered the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad company as a brakeman on Tyrone division, eventually becoming conductor, first in the freight service, then on the Snow Shoe branch, as passenger conductor. While filling the latter position he resided at Bellefonte. He left there eight years ago and came to this place where he worked at the Tyrone foundry a while, then going to Pittsburg where he was employed in a rolling mill. He had been engaged at Mr. Morris' operations at West Winfield for the past four years. The deceased was a man held in high regard by all who knew him and many are the expression of sorrow at the sad death which has summoned him in the prime of life.

31,817 Names Dropped.

Philadelphia, July 26.—As a result of a canvass made by police 31,817 names have been stricken from the voting lists of the city. The director of public safety, under whose supervision the canvass was made, is not satisfied with the results shown, and has ordered that the city be again canvassed.

The canvass just completed was made on orders issued by directors shortly after they assumed office. Charges had been frequently made by reform organizations that the voting lists throughout the city had been padded to the extent of 50,000 names. The City party, a reform political organization, is making a canvass independent of the police.

—Master Robert Taylor, son of R. B. Taylor, of North Spring street, met with quite an accident on Monday afternoon while at play in their yard, he fell on a shovel and cut his head which necessitated several stitches, performed by Dr. Dale.

GREAT FIRE IN TEXAS!

Raging Through Humble Oil Fields.

TWELVE PEOPLE DEAD

They Were Negroes Who Had Been Employed to Stop the Flames and they were Caught.

LOSS SO FAR IS NEARLY $1,000,000.

Houston, Tex., July 25.—With probably twelve persons dead, the fire in the Humble oil fields, which started Sunday night is still burning fiercely, but it still remains confined to the tanks of the Texas oil company. So far as can be learned the burned men were all negroes employed to prevent the spread of the flames. Forty-three mules perished. The managers of the Texas company say that the tanks contained approximately 2,500,000 barrels of oil valued at 25 cents a barrel and that none of the oil will be saved. In addition they say the big pumping plant was destroyed, making a total loss of more than $650 000

Monday the efforts of the fire fighters have been confined to throwing up earthen embankments between the burning tanks of which there are eleven and those in which 400 000 barrels of oil belonging to other companies are stored. These tanks are 3,000 and 4,000 feet away from the fire, but the water which covers the field as a result of the rain on Sunday has floated the burning oil to the first level and a sudden boil over may send the burning fluid to the second embankment which would place the other tanks in great danger.

The fire is not spreading toward the producing field and it is not expected that it will. Hundreds of men were engaged Monday night strengthening the levees, building them higher, and in throwing up additional ridges. Scores of people have lost their temporary homes in the field. Many have already come to Houston to seek shelter.

Among the companies who had oil stored in the Texas tanks are Stelzig & Antil, 30,000 barrels; Brooks & Co., 100,000 barrels; Landelider & Co., 125,000 barrels.

Due to the Humble fire, a sharp advance occurred in the oil market and still further advances are ordered. Free on board oil is quoted at from 22 to 25 cents Monday, an advance of about 4 cents

Humble, Tex., July 25.—Covering an area of nearly a mile with a great canopy of smoke covering two square miles, the oil tanks of the Texas company boiled and bubbled, under the great heat of burning oil. When the fire can be extinguished is problematical. Certainly not until it has burned all of the oil in the eleven big tanks which held 2,500,000 barrels when lightning struck them Sunday afternoon.

It is known that five negro workmen perished. There are hundreds of homeless people, many of them only awaiting a chance to go to Houston for shelter.

Shortly after the big tank which was struck by lightning began to blaze, 200 workmen with seventy-five mules were hurried to the place to throw up earthen embankments to confine the fire to the tank where it originated. Suddenly the oil gave an upheavel, bubbled and lifted a great mass of the burning fluid bodily from the tank and the fire was communicated to three other tanks.

The burning oil caught the men and mules and hemmed them in. There was a wild scramble for safety, men dropping their scrapers and reins. Some of them mounted mules and escaped, but at least 40 mules balked and were burned to death. Five negroes were seen to go down, and it is not believed possible they could have escaped.

Presiding Elder in Deep Water.

The Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin says that Rev. Thomas S. Wilcox, D. D., presiding elder of the Williamsport district of the Central Pennsylvania conference had an exciting experience about two weeks ago while on a fishing trip in Potter county. While driving across Hammersley Fork the horse was swept from its feet by the current and the presiding elder and the Rev. W. A. Graham of Hammersley Fork had to battle hard for a few minutes to safely reach the shore.

STAGE FARE REDUCED.

Four Days from Harrisburg to Pittsburg, Eighty Years Ago.

Among some old papers and books in his possession John L. Horter, of Tyrone, recently found a scrap from a copy of the Huntingdon Gazette of March 9, 1825. In it is noted the establishment of two new postoffices in Huntingdon county one at Petersburg, "by the title of Shaverscreek" and the other at Waterstreet. The Gazette had a good circulation on the stage route extending through Alexandria to Ebensburg. An advertisement announcing the reduction of stage fare on the route from Harrisburg to Pittsburg, is interesting. It reads as follows:

"STAGE FARE REDUCED, — On the Northern Turnpike Road route, from Harrisburg to Pittsburg.—The Stage Proprietors on the above route have determined on running their Stages THREE TIMES A WEEK, to run through in less than four days. Leaves Harrisburg and Pittsburg respectively, every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday morning.

"Fare for the whole distance, $10,90. Way Passengers, six cents per mile. All Baggage at the risque of the owners.

"By the above arrangement, passengers going to or from Baltimore or to or from Philadelphia, either by the Lancaster or Reading route, will be certain of a passage on without delay or disappointment. In addition to a connection with the Baltimore and Philadelphia line of stages at Harrisburg, our line will connect at Pittsburg with the Washington, Beaver & Erie stages, which will accommodate Travelers to any part of the Western country.—John Blair & Co., Robert Clark."

The trip that consumed four days in 1825, from Harrisburg to Pittsburg, may now be covered by the great Pennsylvania railroad in less than five hours.

FELL INTO FLAMES.

Retcued Mother and Sister—Yellow Fever in Alabama.

New York, July 26.—Nathan Newman, twenty years old, lost his life in an heroic effort to save his mother and sister who, with a score of others were for a time in great peril from fire in a Brooklyn tenement house. Half a dozen families, all Hebrews, were sleeping in the double-deck, three-story building when the fire started. When the alarm was given the fire had reached practically every floor and the occupants were forced to flee for their lives. Many were too late to get down the stairways before their escape was cut off, by flames. These sought escape by the narrow ladder which leads to the roof.

Newman got through in safety, but was unable to find his mother and sister. He went back into the burning building, found the woman and assisted them in getting through the opening. When he tried to follow them, however, the ladder was surrounded by flames. He made a rush through the fire but was overcome just as he reached the top and fell back into the flames to his death.

All the other occupants of the house escaped. The loss on the building was $10,000.

YELLOW FEVER.

Fort Morgan, Ala., July 26.—It was announced that four cases of yellow fever have developed on the steamer Columbia which arrived in the bay Sunday from Colon, via Bocas Del Toro. The Columbia was not permitted to go up the bay but was ordered to the quarantine station at Ship Island, ten miles below here at the entrance to Mobile Bay.

He was employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad company as a trackman and was an industrious young man. Fraternally he belonged to the Improved Order of Red Men No. 248 of Snow Shoe

LIVELY SESSION

That of the United Mine Workers of the District of the State.

WATKIN'S RESOLUTION

He was Formerly President of the Central Labor Union of the City of Scranton.

IS OPPOSED TO A SALARIED BOARD.

Scranton, July 20—Wednesday's sessions of the annual convention of the United Mine Workers of the First district were enlivened by one or two discussions of subjects of more than ordinary importance.

Geo Watkins, a former president of the Scranton central labor union, and recently appointed a member of the mine foreman's examining board, introduced a resolution calling attention to the fact that the union was not what it should be in the First district, either financially or numerically, and that the "salaried board was sapping the life of the organization without bringing any results."

The resolution called for the dismissal of the eight salaried members of the board as regular salaried officers, and that they be paid only for the time actually engaged in attending meetings. The resolution was defeated by a vote that was almost unanimous.

Daniel Hayes submitted a resolution, which was adopted, calling attention to the fact that the agreement with the operators will expire in April next, and calling upon the miners to be prepared with their grievances in case the operators were ready to meet them to discuss the same.

Charles H. Thain, of Wilkesbarre, introduced a resolution calling upon all members of the union to give their hearty support to the friends of the organization and to antagonize all open or secret opponents. The resolution was adopted after a brief discussion. The system of examining candidates for mine inspectors was denounced in a resolution, which was adopted, it being charged that the examining board, and not the people, selected the inspectors.

A resolution was also passed adopting the following demands in connection with the contemplated new agreement with the operators:

An eight-hour day; weighing of coal; uniform wages for all hands, a uniform scale for rock, slate, water and all dead work; an agreement between the United Mine Workers of American and the operators.

A demand that the three districts hold a joint convention to adopt a system of settling disputes in place of the conciliation board was defeated, so that the district practically went on record as in favor of the board.

No Strike Coming.

Scranton, Pa., July 26.—Regarding the report in circulation that a general strike of the mine workers was imminent. President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers said:

"This rumor of a strike is so silly that I can find no possible excuse whatever for its circulation."

Indianapolis, Ind., July 26.—S. M. Dixon, editor of the United Mine Workers Journal, said that there is do truth in the statements that have been circulated in various parts of the country to the effect that there would be a serious strike in the mines of Pennsylvania this fall. President Mitchell and Vice President Lewis are at present in Pennsylvania organizing the members of the United Mine Workers more closely and Secretary Wm. B. Wilson is in Michigan.

—A large steel tank at the refinery of the Merchants' Oil company, at Williamsport, fell from a trestling on which it was elevated the other evening. The discharge pipe at the bottom broke off, allowing the contents of the tank to escape. About 2,500 gallons of gasoline ran away into the bed of the old canal.

—At the request of the President investigation is being made in Cambria county into alleged abuses said to have been afflicted on a number of Italian laborers at work at Cresson.

Thieves Again at Work in Bellefonte.

Burglars gained an entrance to the residence of William Garman on East Linn Street some time Tuesday night and carried off Mr. Garman's pocket-book containing a sum of money, his watch and chain, a suit of clothes, some show contracts and his Post office keys, also Mrs. Garman's purse which contained a small sum of money.

The robbery was not discovered until Wednesday morning when Mr. Garman went to make up his toilet and discovered that the above articles were missing. Upon investigation it was found that the house had been invaded by thieves who made their exit from the residence through the kitchen door which was found to be wide open, although securely locked before the family retired for the night.

Gobin Denies Battery Horses Were Abused.

General J. P. S. Gobin, commander of the Third brigade, Wednesday in commenting on the story of alleged cruelty to the horses used by Battery C of Phoenixville during the recent encampment at Mount Gretna, denied that the animals had been cruelly treated, and said the report sent out from Phoenixville cannot be true.

General Gobin declared all the horses were in good condition up to the time the battery left camp on Friday afternoon for the return overland. Inasmuch as the guns are light, he said, he could not believe that the horses suffered from the march.

In conclusion, he said horses, like men, become exhausted in the service.

Girl Sells Her Hose to Pay Railroad Fare

The station at English, Ind., Wednesday the scene of an auction much out of the ordinary. A young man and woman had been put off a train for failing to pay their fare. They were well dressed and refined looking.

After a conference, the young man took off a fancy vest, and offered to sell it at auction. It brought very little. The young woman then produced a new pair of fine shoes and five pairs of silk stockings and offered them for sale

A crowd soon gathered and there was a good deal of rivalry to secure the hose. They finally secured enough money to get tickets to St. Louis.

The young woman said she would sell everything she had before she would beg

Nothing in the Report.

The Clendennin murder case has been revived again by the down-river papers, which publish rumors to the effect that a former Avis woman, who by reason of a domestic misunderstanding with her husband, has told some of her friends that he is the man who slayed Clendennin, but when sifted down, there was nothing found in the rumor, which was given some weight Thursday by the fact that Constable Ellis Myers was in Avis summoning witnesses for a larceny case tried in Lock Haven.

Clearfield Man Struck by Train.

C. E. Hoover was struck by a B. R & P., engine at Clearfield shortly before noon Thursday and quite badly hurt His injuries are not expected to result seriously, however. The pilot beam of the engine, whien was hauling the C. & M. passenger train struck Mr. Hoover in the back and hurled him from the track. No bones were broken, but it is thought that he is injured internally.

The accident happened just as the train was pulling into the Market street station. Mr. Hoover was awaiting the train, intending to go to DuBois. His back was turned to the train and he did not notice that he was so close to the track. The injured man was removed to his home and attended by physicians. He is about 50 years of age.

The Home Paper.

Not until one leavee home does he really appreciate the value of his home paper. Distance lends enchantment is truly proven in this case. When a man pulls up stakes and shakes the dust from his old home from his shoes to seek pastures new be naturally has a hankering to know what is going on in his old home. It is then he appreciates the home paper that had always made weekly visits to his home, but which he had heretofore looked upon as a mere circumstance in the whirlpool of life. Its weekly visits to those who are abroad are like a spring shower upon the parched fields. The movements and actions of those whom we had left behind is even of interest and we are delighted in reading about our one-time neighbors. Truly the home paper is not really appreciated until we get where it is hard to get.—Ex.

We Pass This Way But Once.

According to the very best information obtainable, we pass this way but once, and when we step into the valley of the shadow, all our earthly belongings will be left behind. Not a cow, nor a sheep nor an acre of land, nor a dollar of money, will go into the grave with us. Why then should men race through life in a mad fight for gold, brushing all the better things aside, when at last it must be unloaded at the tomb. Would it not be better to smile a little and do a few good deeds as we go along. Would it not be a better plan to put a flower in the hand of some sad-hearted human being struggling along the road of life, than to clinch the almighty dollar until death forced us to relenquish them.—Ex.

Fire in Howard Township.

Saturday afternoon July 15th the large barn owned by P. P. Swartz and located about a mile north of Howard took fire and burned to the ground, two good horses, a calf, reaper and binder, threshing machine and most all of his crops were consumed by the flames. At the time of the fire, Mr. Swartz was at Bellefonte and no one was at home but two small children. A GOOD NIGHT'S REST

"Speak for it!" she cried to doggie,
For she knew in her little heart,
That German Syrup, home's great treasure,
Could health and joy impart.

¶The greatest tonic on earth is a good night's rest. Restless nights and the terrible exhaustion of a hacking cough are dread dangers of the poor consumptive. ¶But why this fear of the night when a few doses of Dr. Boschee's German Syrup will insure refreshing sleep, entirely free from cough or night sweat? Free expectoration in the morning is made certain by taking German Syrup. ¶We know by the experience of over thirty-five years that one 75-cent bottle of German Syrup will speedily relieve or cure the worst coughs, colds, bronchial or lung troubles—and that, even in bad cases of consumption, one large bottle of German Syrup will work wonders. is ¶Two sizes, 25c and 75c. Superior Court.

Philadelphia, July 22.—The superior court held a short session in this city recently for the purpose of handing down decisions, and then adjourned until the first Monday in October. The list of decisions handed down was exceptionally long, and one of the most important was embodied in an opinion by Judge Orlady, sustaining the constitutionality of the pure food law and affirming the decisions of the quarter sessions court of Philadelphia in the case of Charles W. Spencer, convicted of selling Hamburger steak containing illegal preservatives. Spencer was fined $50 and costs after a long and bitterly fought trial in the lower court.

The superior court, in an opinion by Judge Porter, also decided that selling cigars on Sunday does not constitute a breach of the peace. Addison Foster, of Delaware county, on the charge of repeatedly violating the Sunday law of 1794 by selling soft drinks and cigars, was held by a local justice under bonds to keep the peace. The superior court discharges Mr. Foster. Judge Potter pointed out that no disorder was charged against Foster, and said the magistrate, under circumstances of this case, had no jurisdiction to require Foster to enter bail to keep the peace.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co. Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

GIBBS' SAFE CURE.

"I have it now," exclaimed Gibbs, exultingly, as he bounced into the room.

Mrs. Gibbs eyed her husband askance.

"Let me take your hand," said Gibbs—she wondering.

"Now think," continued he, "think hard, think of something, anything, shut your eyes, take a towel, handkerchief, draw it over your eyes," and before she fully realized what had been done, Mrs. Gibbs had blindfolded him; he had grasped her wrist, and was leading her aimlessly about the room.

"Now, place your mind on some article, and think just how you would get it," commanded the excited Gibbs, wriggling his fingers like four tadpoles through the air.

Then his movements became steady; he led her to the clock, reached up carefully, lifted the key, loosened his grip, and jerked off the towel.

"See how easy it is," he exclaimed; "can do it every time, and paid only $50 to learn how.

"Isn't that one of the neatest performances in mind reading you ever saw? I'm going to make some easy money—bill myself—show in small towns—great scheme.

"How do I do it? Easy enough. I have the touch of your wrist, you may follow me but there's a little holdback to your wrist—the muscle tells me.

"Up, down, over this way, that, the touch, ever so gentle, leads me to what you are thinking about. No, not mind reading, muscle reading. That's all the best of them have."

When Gibbs arrived in Caseburg for a two nights' stand with his "show" he sought to imitate the "professor" who had secured his "fifty" and give some public demonstrations of his "mental prowess."

"Bosh," said the sheriff, when asked to accompany him on the expedition; "all rot, nonsense."

"But if I should tell you to think of a safe in a store, take you by the wrist, lead you to it, there pick out the proprietor of the store, take him by the wrist, and open the safe, then what would you think of it?" asked Gibbs.

"I'd think a great deal more of it than I do now," answered the sheriff.

"Gimme your wrist," said Gibbs. Without giving the sheriff time to assent or refuse, he had the officer of the law running down the street, hand on wrist, as though the two were wild.

People stopped in gapping wonderment at the antics of their sheriff and his strange companion. Then they followed to learn what it was all about.

Think of a safe! Think of a safe! Your mind isn't on it. Think! think! think! We are wondering without purpose," yelled Gibbs, the expressions deepening the mystery which had come over all.

Gibbs' fingers were again feeling through the air. This and the drawn expression on his face gave him a weird appearance, and the people regarded him with awe.

"Now you are thinking of a safe," he said, bolting into a store. The proprietor was in the rear. Gibbs led the sheriff directly to the rear, stopping suddenly.

"You are the proprietor, I am the mind reader," said Gibbs, panting. "I have told the sheriff I could open your safe without your telling me the combination; you will let me?" And before the merchant could make reply, Gibbs had him by the wrist and was leading him toward the safe.

Gibbs gave the dial several quick turns, then slowed his movements, waiting for some indication from the merchant's wrist. At 50 there was a slight trembling; at 55 an unmistakable twitch.

"You must be honest with me," said Gibbs, 'I make no profession of trying to get the number, unless you think on them intently."

As he got to each number of the combination there was a twitch, he turned the dial aright and the safe opened.

He got along fairly well with the first night's performance.

"Sorry, but I will have to ask you to go with me," said the sheriff, the next morning to Gibbs, who had been awakened by the loud rapping on his door, and had opened to admit the officer, without even stopping to dress.

"What's the joke?" asked Gibbs, with as much bewilderment as he had caused the people the afternoon before.

"A mighty serious one for you to try to spring on the people here, even if we are a little country town," shot back the Sheriff, curtly.

"I don't go without a warrant," declared the now frightened Gibbs, edging away from the officer.

"And here it is. Come, hurry up and get those duds on," said the sheriff, poking the professor's trousers with his cane. "Got it in there?"

"Got what?" demanded Gibbs.

"The roll. Say, but you are a good actor. You play the innocent fine."

"Now, let me tell you, officer, I don't know what you are talking about. I am alone here, and innocent. All I ask is a show, and I will clear myself."

"You better be looking for a show to clear out, especially considering the big roll you took," suggested the sheriff.

"What's the charge?" shouted Gibbs, hotly. "Let me see it," and the sheriff handed him the warrant.

"I never knew, saw, heard or read of James McDermott & Son," declared Gibbs before he had made much progress in reading the warrant.

"You must be a great mind reader, not to know the name of the man who was fool enough to let you open his safe yesterday afternoon. My, but you're an innocent one!" declared the officer.

"Explain," and there was a pleading tone in the voice of Gibbs that really touched the sheriff's heart.

"It's easy; $650 put in their safe last night; and it isn't there this morning—and the safe wasn't blown up, either. You tricked the old man into letting you get the combination, and the circulations are that some time between bed time and getting up time you slipped out o' here, got the safe open and took the gazuma. Now, do you see?"

"Take me to jail," gasped Gibbs.

"How are your wheat investments proving? Making you something are they?" asked a modest little woman, with a gentle voice, addressing the elder McDermot the following day, she having paid him for some dimity.

"We don't deal in grain here, only general merchandise," replied the merchant, his face showing the surprise he felt over the strange question from the strange woman.

"It is very kind of your clerk to invest your money for you and save you the worry of the rise and fall of markets, very kind indeed," rejoined the lady, calmly.

"Our clerk has been with us 15 years and would do nothing of the kind without consulting us," said McDermot, somewhat warmly.

"I don't care if he has been with you 60 years," she spoke clearly, firmly "he has invested your money in wheat, and it was so considerate of him, too, to go to the city at night so that it would not interfere in any with his duties in the store—"

"Madam, what do you mean by such nonsense?" shouted the merchant with more temper than he had shown in many years.

"Compose yourself, my dear sir; compose yourself," she said, softly, then, turning quickly, shrieked: "Look at that guilty countenance behind you," and she pointed her finger straight at a man of middle age, who was nervously fingering a grayish mustache, his face ashy pale, his eyes downcast.

"You have my husband in jail charged with stealing your money," continued she, earnestly; "money taken by the trusted confidential clerk of yours. Gibbs may be a fool, but he is not a thief. This man may not be a fool, only as all thieves are fools, but a thief he is for sure. When my husband unlocked that miserable safe of yours, this clerk saw his opportunity to take the money out at night and throw suspicion on Gibbs, a stranger.

"What were you doing in the city last night?" she said scornfully to the clerk. "Why did you go under cover of darkness? When I came on the early morning train and saw you get on at the city, who was the man that came into the car with you, and to whom did you talk about the prospects of the market going up? Whose money did you invest? You know and I know it was the identical $650 you made this man believe my husband stole."

The accusation came with such force and truth that the bewildered clerk could not hide the guilt he felt.

The first indication Gibbs had that Mrs. Gibbs had come in response to his telegram saying to her "Hurry to Caseville, am in trouble," was when she appeared at the jail with the merchant to order his release.

"On, how did you convince them that I am innocent?" exclaimed the joyous Gibbs.

"By convincing them that you are too big a fool to know how to steal," snapped Mrs. Gibbs. "Let's go out of here."—Kansas City Star.

Jug of Sour Wine Cost $45 70.

Alderman Anthony's court at Lock Haven was over-run with Avis residents Friday forenoon. Among the number were ten boys, some of whom were accompanied by their parents. The boys were charged by Mrs. Sadie Shearer with the larceny of a jug of wine, several meat saws, barrow wheels, cartridges, etc., last fall a year ago. The ten boys who are alleged to have entered the Shearer house during the absence of the occupants, did not deny the allegations in the main, and saved themselves further trouble by settling, the fine and costs for each one amounting to $4.57. Both Alderman and Constable Myers were well satisfied with the forenoon's business, and their countenances wore smiles. One bunch of boys took the wine away from the crowd who secured it from the Shearer home and when they came to drinking it they say it was sour and unfit for use. When the warrants were served recently the second group of boys were drawn in the law's dragnet with those who took the things originally and all had to divy up Friday forenoon.—Lock Haven Democrat.

The Glass Workers' Convention.

The recent conference at Cleveland between the representatives of the two organizations of the glass workers, which resulted in leaving the matters of the glass workers in much the same shape as they have been during the past few years, will not have a tendency to be for the best interests of the men who are employed in making glass. It was hoped that this convention would have the effect of bringing the two organizations together, so that they might work harmoniously, but the meeting has accomplished really nothing, and the affairs of the glass workers are still in as muddled a condition as they have been.

At the Cleveland meeting no arrangements were made for another convention, so it is natural to suppose that the affairs of the men will drift along in much the same manner in the future as they have in the past. By working together in harmony the glass workers could accomplish much for themselves and their cause.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., July 25th.

It seems from the text of the Chinese note that has just been received in Washington, that China did not after all ask for representation at the Peace Conference at Portsmouth. The note from her was received at Washingron and addressed in identical terms to the other powers stating that she would not agree to any settlement of the question at issue between Russia and Japan that did not recognize her sovereign claims in Manchuria. The note has been forwarded to the President at Oyster Bay. A similar warning, for it is nothing less in tone, has been sent by the Chinese government to St. Petersburg and to Tokyo. Whatever China has to say on the subject probably will have but little weight, but the mere fact that she has thought it necessary to address such a note to the negotiating powers and to define her position to the rest of the world indicates that she has not all the faith she might have in the assurances of Japan that her war against Russia was not for territorial aggrandisement and that she intended to return intact whatever territory of China she wrested from the Russians on the mainland. China will of course be assured of the moral support of this government in preserving her integrity, but it would be a little curious if the Portsmouth conference brought about any agreement between Japan and Russia that would call for a warning on the subject from the United States and the other powers.

The work of the coming session of Congress probably will be too great to admit of any extensive investigation into the question of tariff revision. There are several subjects in which the President is deeply interested and tariff revision is one of them. The Panama canal and railway rate revision are two others and there probably will be a good deal to do in the Philippines as a result of Secretary Taft's trip there. Just what will have to be done to meet the Treasury deficit is not yet clear. Possibly a reimposition of the Spanish War taxes or an increase of the internal revenue taxes may be adopted, but as much as the executive would like a thorough overhauling of the tariff schedule, it is probable that this will have to be put off in favor of some more speedy temporary remedy.

The investigation into the cotton leak makes it more likely each day that there will be criminal prosecutions of those responsible. Morgan Beech, the attorney for the District and the acting Attorney General have been in conference and it is thought that the case can be brought into the criminal court. President Roosevelt is anxious that the case be carried to the limit as a warning to others in the government service that the penalty of "easy money" is the penitentiary. It seems certain that Holmes' winnings as the result of advance information were large, probably above a quarter of a million dollars. The officers of the law are doing their best to secure information on which to indict him and perhaps others guilty of participating in the profits and it is not thought that the guilty ones will get off any easier than the people who were indicted as the result of the Post-office investigation.

Young Woman Killed in Awful Auto Crash.

Miss Olive Johnson of Lima, Ohio, was crushed to death and burned and five others persons were severely burned and bruised Friday night when a large automobile plunged into a ditch near Broad Ripple, exploding the gasoline storage tank, C. O. Dale, of Indianapolis, who was driving the machine, was seriously burned. The others who were injured are: Clara Brennan, Muncie, Ind.; Ethel Jones, Shelbyville, Ind.; Inez Brennan and Hazel Orr of Indianapolis.

The party was speeding along the river road when the machine struck a rut, overturning the machine in a ditch and throwing the occupants underneath. From the tail light the gasoline tank was ignited and two explosions followed, throwing burning fluid over the young people pinioned beneath the machine.

Before help could reach the party Miss Johnson had been burned to death. The flames were then extinguished.

The other young women sustained bruises and cuts and were slightly burned

A Long Nose.

In a village in Maryland an old deacon, in shaving himself on Sunday prior to church time, made a slight cut with a razor on the extreme end of his nose. Quickly calling to his wife, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger, he asked her if there was any court plaster in the house. "You will find some in my sewing basket," she said.

The deacon soon had the cut covered. At church, assisting with the collection, he noticed everyone smile as he passed the plate, and some of the younger people laughed outright. Very much annoyed, he asked one of his assistants if there was anything wrong with his appearance.

"Well, I should say there was," answered the assistant. "What is that upon your nose?"

"Court plaster!"

"No!" said his friend," "it is the label from a spool of cotton. It says, 'Warranted 200 yards.'"

This Wicked World.

One of our exchanges says: Print the grandest sermon that ever fell from inspired lips and not twenty per cent of even the professedly pious will read it. Print a detailed account of some female bunco game or a sensational divorce in high life and ninty-nine per cent. of the very elect will make a dive for the paper before breakfast, swoop down upon it like a negro upon a bowl of crabsoup, devour every word, then roll their eyes heavenward like a calf with the colic and wonder what this wicked world is coming to.

Threw Wages Into the Creek.

Frank Voesig; of Shamokin, quarreled with his wife after he had received pay at a colliery, about the proper distribution of the coin. She wanted a certain amount, and he would not give it to her. He finally said he would hurl his money in the Shamokin creek before he would submit. He went to the stream and threw about $75 in the water. A big crowd of men and boys dragged the creek for the money. Several bills were recovered.

—Perry Barner, while riding on a stone car Saturday at the Armor Gap quarry where he is employed, fell off and broke one of his arms. He is a former employee of the Daily News office and his friends were sorry to learn of his accident.

ELAINE ROZE'S OUTING LETTER.

What to Wear for Traveling.--Advance Styles in Millinery. The Fashionable Girl Athletic.

No gown in the wardrobe of the fashionable woman of today is of more importance than the traveling or outing attire of mohair or light weight cloth for while the vogue of linen and tub gowns is still in the ascendant for home wear, for a start on a journey, at the end of which one wishes to present a smart appearance, the tub gown is to be shunned.

The stunning dark blue mohair shown in my illustration with its two plaits at each gore stitched closely to the knee line, and hanging freely below, and with its half "dressy" half severe little Eton jacket, is one of the most ideal models I have seen for the Knockabout frock. It was designed by a tailor who caters to exclusive trade, and made for one of Newport's smartest young matrons. Priestley cravenetted, the old fault of mohair—that of shrinking and shrivelling if caught on in fog or rain—is overcome. Cravenette stamped on the back of the cloth assures Milady that she may reach the end of her journey with her mohair gown in perfect condition.

And now the proper tailored hat—for no woman who is to any degree smart would travel in any but a "tailored" for jaunting, whether on land or sea, in town or country, comes in for its share of consideration, and for this very essential portion of the travelling costume, the most popular choice is the light weight felt outing hat. Hummel models shown in the smartest shops are so varied in shape and size, while each one seems more attractive than the last one examined, that no one, no matter what her age or coloring, can fail to find the hat best suited to her particular style.

The one selected to wear with the blue mohair gown in the illustration was of leather color of a most exquisitely soft shade of tan, with a large rolling brim and medium high round crown daintily draped in a most creamy white silk, which with its perfectly matched white wing blended with the leather color with true Hummel cachet.

The suspender craze, like all fashions that become universally popular, is the wane, and she who invested in a great number and variety of wide belts and buckles will soon go to the other extreme, narrow belts having taken their place with most up-to-date women. With the skirts cut to cling closely over the hips and blouses of much less pouching lines, the selection of a perfectly built corset such as the C-B a la Spirite is most essential, and while the woman who "laces" is in the minority in these blessed days when it is fashionable to appear strong and athletic, the corset laces are drawn a shade tighter at the waist line.

During August I will be scouring Paris and London for the latest Autumn models, and my next letter will be from the French capital.

Rural Mail Route for Sugar Valley.

The inspector of rural mail routes has visited Sugar valley, gone over the proposed rural route and when he left he declared his attention of recommending to the post office department the adoption of the new route.

The proposed route is to start at Loganton, cross the valley to the south side, go west on the winter road to Tylersville, continuing on west to Ruhl's saw mill, returning east again over the summer road past Miller's and Caris', to where that road intersects the main road west of Tylersville and from that point continue back to Loganton, a distance of 22 miles.

The star route now in existence will not be discontinued, neither will any of the postoffices along this route be done away with. The new route will be a convenience to the outlying districts. It is expected that the route will be established in a very few weeks.

Another route beginning at Loganton running east beyond Carroll and taking in the south side of the valley will soon be asked for with good prospects of being established.

Carried the Mail Four Years for Lowest Price Possible.

The postoffice department has drawn a warrant in favor of Adriel L. Stuart of Freedom, N. H., for one cent.

This is Stuart's pay for carrying the mails for four years from Freedom to a railroad station, seven and three quarters miles away.

He travels this distance of 15½ miles six times a week His pay is a quarter of a cent a year, or one three hundred and twelfth part of a cent for one trip.

This is the smallest treasury warrant issued and Sturrt will have it framed instead of cashed. He bid this low figure because of the prestige which the sign "United States Mail" on his wagon gives him in his passenger carrying business.

Mother of 25 Babies in 29 Years is Dead.

Mrs. Samuel P. Swartwood, the mother of 25 children within 29 years, died Saturday night at her home at Mountain Top, near Wilkesbarre. There were but two sets of twins in all this number.

Of the 25, 18 are now alive and several are married, there being 12 grandchildren. Mrs. Swartwood was married when 14 years old, and the first baby came 14 months later. This was in 1872, and during all the years since then she has not known the time when she did not have a baby to care for, except during the last few years, for the last baby came five years ago.

Mrs. Swartwood, always contented, said it was easier to raise a large family than a small one, and that her children were a great joy to her. Her husband is an engineer on the Jersey Central railroad.

Arrested at Washington.

John C. Eccleston, of Lewisburg, who is mentally unballanced, was arrested shortly after midnight Friday morning at the White House for attempting to scale the high iron fence around the grounds, and insisting upon seeing the president, who is at Oyster Bay. He resisted arrest, and awed the officer on duty by pointing to a little green bag he carried and declared that it contained a powerful explosive and enough to blow up every policeman on earth. After considerable persuasion Eccleston accompanied the officers to the station house, where he was informed he would be allowed to see President Roosevelt. On his person were dozens of letters to the president containing suggestions as to how to conduct the affairs of the government, and also letters from Senator Penrose Representative Bingham recommending Eccleston for appointment as consul at Rosario, Argentine Republic. While at the station Eccleston suddenly declared that he was "Scotty," the millionaire mine owner, of Death valley, and that he would remain in Washington a few days and "blow" in a few thousands.

"On seeking the advice of a physician, he prescribed a tonic. I found, however, that it did me no good. On seeking the advice of our druggist, he asked me to try Peruna. In a few weeks I began to feel and act like a different person. My appetite increased, I did not have that worn-out feeling, and I could sleep splendidly. In a couple of months I was entirely recovered. I thank you for what your medicine has done for me."—Ella Off.

Child-Wife Sues War Veteran for Support.

Jacob Klink, a Civil war veteran and a business man of Reading, has been arrested on the charge of desertion and non-support on oath of his 15-year-old wife, Elizabeth. Klink is 58 years old, and was married once before, but was divorced from his first wife. He has a family of grown children, who were much opposed to his second marriage.

Klink's present wife was a mere school girl when he married her, being between 13 and 14 years of age. She is very pretty. The pair got along very well together for the first six months, but since that time their relations have been anything but pleasant.

In his own behalf Klink declares that he got along well with his child-wife, and that outside interference separated them.

The chief cause of their separation was the fact that so many of his wife's young friends twitted her for being married to "such an old man."

"This turned her head," he declared, "and her love toward me grew cold." Klink has entered bail for court.

Public School Graduates.

The Wilkesbarre Record has made a canvass of business men in the Wyoming Valley to ascertain the qualification of boys graduated from the public schools who have afterward secured employment in various establishments. The testimony of 342 employers shows that nearly half of the boys seeking employment are deficient in one or all of the three R's.

The Record says: "It is a lamentable fact that although the public school is supposed above everything else to give pupils a good grounding in reading, writing and arithmetic, language, geography and spelling these branches are imperfectly taught, and even grammar grades are taken up mainly with latin, physics, algebra and other branches of study that prepare for the higher education which four fifths of the children never reach."

To this comment the Philadelphia Record adds the following.

"Rudimentary education that serves as the necessary basis of getting on in the world for children who have to make their own way is now mainly attained after leaving school. As soon as the child gets out of the primary class he is seized upon by the educational faddist, who so train him that when he is ready to graduate he is a varnish of high class schooling with out necessary elementary inside finish to build upon."

Mustache 24 inches Long.

W. L. G. Zerbe, better known as "Leff" Zerbe, of Pine Grove, died suddenly Tuesday of rhematism of the heart, aged about 56 years. Mr. Zerbe had the longest mustache of any man in Schuylkill county, the length of the growth on the upper lip reaching a span of twenth-four inches. For a quarter of a century he conducted a candy, tobacco and cobbler shop. He was accustomed to wear his hair disheveled, and on the night he died, and very strangely to his folks, he combed himself neatly and when his wife awoke she found him gasping. A moment later he expired.

Avis to Have a Weekly Paper.

The first edition of the "Avis Advance" will be issued to the reading public next Friday. Messrs. Grady and Hagenbuch, of Montgomery, will be the publishers. Mr. Grady is the publisher of the "Montgomery Mirror," and Mr. Hagenbuch is also a Montgomery man. The new railroad town should be a prolific field and the publishers are experienced newspaper men and they should meet with success.

Women Should be Careful.

A Kansas City physician has discovered that high collars worn by women produce cancer of the throat, and the Hopkins "Journal" adds that low necked dresses produce pneumonia, corsets produce heart disease and shortness of breath long skirts gather up germs of all infectious diseases, thin soles produce consumption, tight shoes cause the toes to grow together, and looking at bright millinery causes sore eyes.

To Cut 200,000,000 Feet.

The large new saw mill of John E. DuBois at Hicks Run started up this week. The erection of the mill has been going on since spring and it has been made a very complete plant. There is approximately 200,000,000 feet of lumber to cut on it and the present plans are to cut 20,000,000 a year. There is probably no more complete plant, or one having the assurances of a longer run, in the state, than the Hicks run mill.

Pruner Estate Sued.

H. P. Graffius and W. B. Manley, attorneys, entered suit in Hollidaysburg, Monday, against the Fidelity Trust Co, of Philadelphia, executors of the estate of Col. E. J. Pruner, to recover $1,500 for fees. The attorneys allege that they were retained by the late Mr. Pruner to manage his campaign for the office of State Senator on the Republican ticket in 1904.

Before the primaries Pruner withdrew his name and J. C. Stineman, his opponent, was elected. Mr. Pruner died of paralysis, after bequeathing the bulk of his estate to orphan children. The attorneys claim that he made no provisions in his will for the payment of their fees.

Must Support Themselves.

The Superior court of Pennsylvania has handed down an opinion reversing the decision of the court of Northampton county, in the suit brought by A. D. Boger a merchant at Alliance, against that borough, to recover the amount of a bill of goods furnished a family when the latter were quarantined because of the prevalence of small pox. The Supreme court holds that people quarantined are to support themselves if they are able to do so, if they are not able, then the poor authorities of the county are to look after them.

THE STATE TREASURERSHIP

Republican Nominee As Viewed By An Editor From His Home County.

In commenting upon the contest for state treasurer, the editor of the Hollidaysburg Register says:

"Hon. J. Lee Plummer, the Republican candidate for state treasurer, has the ability to fill that office with credit. This fact cannot be successfully contradicted; besides, he is known by the people with whom he has lived all his life to be perfectly honest and reliable and a man of the strictest integrity. While not a Prohibitionist, he is a man of the strictest temperance habits. These are facts which cannot be controverted. He was regularly nominated in a Republican state convention, composed of delegates who were chosen by the Republicans of the various counties of the state.

"There was every opportunity for any man in the state to contest the nomination with him. He was nominated fairly as the candidate of his party. Now, what Republican can have a valid excuse to vote against him? Is it better that the Republicans assist a Democrat into one of the best offices of the state, or vote for their candidate, who is in every way worthy? The opposition is trying hard to raise a respectable fight against him, but the only possible show they will have will be through the votes of Republicans. Why should we aid them in their work?"

A Word to State Republicans.

"The Republican party is not responsible for the misuse that has been made of it in Philadelphia," says the editor of the Juniata Herald. "The truth is that it deserves credit for correcting the wrongs that have been committed by some of its faithless members. The corruption that has existed in Philadelphia is wholly of a local character and the party in the state has no connection with or relation to it. Why should the party elsewhere suffer on account of it? Why should state candidates be defeated because of what has occurred in a single city? If the sins of a few were to be visited upon the party when could it ever be successful? The Republican ticket is composed of honest men, was fairly nominated and is entitled to the support of every member of the party. Be sure to vote for it."

—A Kansas City wife has the legal right to search her husband's pockets for loose change, according to the decision of Judge Slover, of the circuit. William M. Harding asked a divorce from Ida M. Harding, one reason being because she had a habit of "faisking" his pockets after he fell asleep. When the evidence was all in Judge Slover said: "I want it distinctly understood that I am not granting this divorce because the wife went into her husband's pockets. I shall do nothing to interfere with that ancient privilege of the fair sex. A wife has the right to do that. I grant the divorce for other reasons." Some of the Bellefonte people will probably want to move westward.

A Helpless Child.

A weak and puny child is badly handicapped in the battle of life. It is isolated from the healthy enjoyments of its little fellow-beings. It cannot partake either of their play or their sturdy work and progress in this world; its whole body is embittered by incapacity and weakness.

Exercise Before Breakfast.

For almost every person under 50 and for a great many people over 50 exercise is the nearest approach to a panacea for bodily ills that has yet been devised. Causing the body to move and stretch and push and pull make the blood circulate, the liver do its work and the nerves pick up their dropped stitches.

An excellent time to exercise is before breakfast. Neither man nor beast as a rule, goes to sleep hungry. During sleep there is little waste of energy. On waking there is no immediate demand for replenishment of lost tissues. Furthermore, the long sleep has left the nerves and digestive apparatus dull and leadened. To sit down to a heavy breakfast within 15 or 20 minutes after getting out of bed means that the stomache receives food which it does not need and will not readily digest.

A little shaking up before breakfast arouses vitality and consequently makes the appetite and digestion better. That means better work done during the day. If a man can get away from work in time to take additional exercise during the afternoon he will have a better appetite for his evening meal and more power to digest it. That will mean better sleep at night.

They will put a big force of men at work, and it is expected the road, which will be upwards of two miles in length, will be completed in about two months.

The blood is strained and purified by the kidneys. No hope of health while the kidneys are wrong. Foley's Kidney Cure will make healthy kidneys and pure blood. C. M. Parrish.

—The trick of the French goose farmers, who tack the feet of their birds to boards in order to cause enlargement of the livers, from which pate de foie gras is made, has been excelled by a Bucks county farmer, Edward W. Twining, a duck farmer living near here, is the man. He has just completed the installation of an electric lighting plant on his farm, and the coops in which the ducks stay at night are kept brilliantly lighted from sun-down until dawn. Bees Killed Dog.

Notwithstanding the efforts of a girl who tried to save him, a valuable hunting dog belonging to Isaac Yoder, of Niantic near Boyertown, was stung to death by a swarm of bees Wednesday. The animal had been tied near a score of beehives, and that day Miss Yoder, a daughter of the owner, heard him howling with pain, and found that he had been attacked by the bees.

Covering her face and arms with fly netting, she advanced into the swarm, and cut the rope that held the animal. The latter plunged into Perkiomen creek and allowed only the tip of his nose to stick out until the bees left him. The young woman coaxed the dog out of the water and tried to alleviate his sufferings by the use of home [illegible], but the animal died in a few hours. His body was terribly swollen.

LYNCHED A NEGRO

Mob Breaks into a Jail in Texas.

BATTERED DOWN DOORS

Could Not Get into the Cell so They Shot Through the Bars at the Prisoner they Wanted.

DAVE SPAHR HANGED THURSDAY

New Braunfels, Texas, July 21.—A mob Thursday morning battered down the doors of the county jail and killed Sam Green, a 16-year-old negro boy, who attempted criminal assault at this place Tuesday night on the young daughter of William Karbach, a German farmer, who lives on the out skirts of town. The mob could not break into the cell where the prisoner was kept, so the leaders thrust their guns through the opening of the steel walls and fired three shots. The negro sank to the floor dead, and the mob quickly dispersed.

The negro protested his innocence, but during the day had confessed his guilt.

Carlisle, July 21.—On the same gallows which hurled two other murderers, Charles Salyards and Martin Fry, into eternity within the past eleven years, David Spahr was hung here Thursday for the murder of his wife, Gertrude Rice Spahr, on May 31, 1904.

Deputy Sheriff Mentzer sprung the trap at 10:14 and at 10:35 the body was cut down, death being due to strangulation. Seventeen minutes after the drop fell his pulse was norm

Sheriff Thomas Derr lived up to his resolution that none other than those required by law should witness the execution. He did not even give out the names of those who were to be on the jury; reporters were barred, unless they by chance were of this number.

All week the doomed man held out in his characteristic manner, having little to say and declaring that he did not regret the fact that he killed his wife, although he probably had made a mistake.

He has shown little anxiety for his future, and did not think there was a necessity for religious advisors.

Mr. Rice, a contractor of Steelton, and father of the murdered woman, was here a few days ago and made arrangements for the burial of his son-in-law. The $300 insurance which Spahr had on his life will likely go toward the support of his children.

REPUBLICANS ALERT

Active Work Already Under Way For the Fall Campaign.

VOTERS ARE BEING ENROLLED

The Forces In the Several Counties Have Been Lined Up For a Thorough Canvass of the State.

[Special Correspondence.]

Harrisburg, July 4.

Initial steps have already been taken for an aggressive campaign for the whole Republican ticket in this state.

While the orators will not take to the hustings until Sepetember, that always effective, powerful and mighty force, the Republican county committeemen, now silently at work, before many days shall roll by will have completed the enrollment of over 800,000 voters. Every registered voter in the commonwealth, outside of the cities of Philadelphia, Pittsburg and Allegheny, will have his name recorded in the poll books of these Republican committeemen, and within a short time a canvass will be begun to enlighten the chairman of the Republican state committee as to the political leanings of every one of these voters. Local organizations look after the registrations in the three cities named above.

Pennsylvania's superb Republican organization has not its equal in the world.

It has time and again demonstrated its ability to cope with every problem with which it has been confronted, and in the contest this fall there is no reason to doubt that the outcome will be entirely satisfactory to all well wishers of Republicanism.

While the average citizen is paying but little attention to politics today, the men who have made possible the great victories of the Republican party in this state are alert and active. The Republican organization of the Keystone state is a great institution. It was not constructed in a day, nor in a year. It has taken many years to perfect it, and it is built upon a substantial foundation. It rests upon the intelligence, the public spirit and the patriotism of the people. Leaders may come and leaders may go, but the great Republican organization of Pennsylvania will continue on indefinitely to represent the will of the Republican voters of the commonwealth, and conserve the interests of the whole people.

County Chairman to the Front.

The county chairman, that interesting and versatile character recently portrayed by George Ade, the playwright, in a popular comedy, now occupies the centre of the political stage in this state. Following out instructions from Colonel Wesley R. Andrews, chairman of the Republican state committee, the county chairman is a busy man. He is supervising the copying of the lists of voters filed with the county commissioners into the poll books furnished by the state committee.

The next move will be to have the members of the county committee from each election district carefully canvass their respective districts, and indicate in the books the politics of every voter. Other information of value to the party organization relative to the voters will also be gathered. About 6000 members of the county committees will be engaged on this work.

Within a short time the chairman of the state committee will ask for the appointment of the auxilliary committees and the vigilantes in each election district in the state. There will be about 60,000 of these loyal, earnest and aggressive Rpublican workers.

Young Men Are Wanted.

"These are the men who are the bone and sinew of the Republican party in Pennsylvania," said Chairman Andrews a few days ago. "They can't be bribed, bought or bulldozed. They represent the best blood of Republicanism of the state. They are Republicans from principle, and a great majority of them give their time and services to the party without expectation or thought of personal reward."

A special effort is to be made this year to get an exceptionally large percentage of young men enlisted for this work. First voters are to be encouraged to enlist in the ranks of the Republican party to go among their neighbors and interest them in the campaign, and to plan for the polling of every Republican vote that can be got out on election day. Young men are to be impressed with the fact that nearly every American president was first introduced to public life through the medium of the party organization in the election precinct. Ambitious young Pennsylvanians are to be urged to take up the cause of Republicanism in their respective localities, and to actively identify themselves with the county committeemen and others who have been looking after the affairs of the party in their precincts and to aid them in every possible manner in the canvass which will shortly be begun.

Chairman Andrews and His Plans.

A member of the Dauphin county Republican committee received a letter from State Chairman Andrews yesterday, in which, among other things, he said:

Everything is in excellent shape for the opening of the campaign. The meeting of the state committee at which Hon. John Stewart was nominated for the supreme bench brough together a representative gathering of active Republicans from all over the state.

Reports received as to the condition of the party from every section were of the most gratifying character. The party was never so harmonious, nor was there ever a better spirit displayed toward the candidates on a ticket. My daily mail is very large, showing a deep interest in the party work now under way.

I shall be at the state headquarters, on and off, until the second week in July, when I will go to my home in Meadville, where I will attend to all correspondence until the formal opening of the Republican state headquarters in Philadelphia, which will be on or about August 15.

Five Strong Nominees.

The fact that there are five candidates on the state ticket this year, will mean that the total vote will be swelled by the activity of the personal friends and neighbors of these nominees, who will be anxious to have each of them given a complimentary vote in his home and nearby counties.

The head of the ticket Justice John Stewart, of Franklin county, nominee for the supreme bench, has a large following, and is favorably known in almost every county in the state. Members of the bar with whom he is personally acquainted will take pleasure in working to swell his vote.

The same can be truthfully said also of each of the nominees for the superior court. Judge Charles E. Rice, president judge of the superior court, who comes from Luzerne county, is particularly strong throughout the anthracite coal region. He has won an enviable reputation as a jurist, and his personal qualities have endeared him to all who have had intimate relations with him.

The battle-scarred war veteran, General James A. Beaver, former governor and candidate to succeed himself on the superior court bench, has long commanded the admiration of his fellow citizens for his patriotism, his sterling worth, and his fairness as a judge. His home county of Centre, and, in fact, every county in the state, will have a host of champions of Judge Beaver, among them members of the Grand Army, who will leave nothing undone to make him run well up with the head of the ticket in the balloting in November next. Judge George B. Orlady, of Huntingdon, is known as one of the most affable and approachable judges on the bench in Pennsylvania. He, too, comes up for re-election to the superior court, and it is predicted that his candidacy will contribute materially to strengthen the entire Republican ticket in the state. Republicans of his home county are already engaged in a personal canvass in his interest, and they declare that he will be given one of the largest votes ever cast for a candidate from that county.

A Messenger Boy's Force of Character.

J. Lee Plummer, of Blair county, the nominee for state treasurer, is counted upon to poll the largest vote ever cast for a candidate for state treasurer in Pennsylvania. His personal integrity is unquestioned, and his political career has been such as to commend him to the voters of his section of the state who have known him for years, and who insisted upon his nomination at the hands of the Republican state convention. He began life in the humble capacity of messenger boy. He afterward became a brakeman on the Pennsylvania railroad, and then by hard work and many sacrifices, he had himself admitted to the bar. His success has been an inspiration to the young men of his section, and his popularity has been attested on many an occasion. As a member of the legislature he worked to bring about many reforms, and his interest in the charities of the state was shown in valuable services as chairman of the appropiation committee.

The fact that all of the candidates on the Republican ticket were nominated without a contest, and each by a unanimous vote, is an indication of the sentiment that prevails throughout the state towards the several nominees.

Must Look to Congress.

The fact that a governor and a full delegation to congress are to be elected next year will add to the interest of the campaign this fall. The importance of keeping the Republican lines intact will be appreciated by all who are familiar with political conditions throughout the country.

There has been observed a tendency in many sections of the country to revive the agitation for a revision of the tariff, and it is anticipated that Pennsylvania's manufacturing interests will require the full and aggressive support of a solid Republican delegation in the next national house of representatives to protect them from an onslaught which is bound to come from the tariff revisionists.

Pennsylvania profits more than any other state through the protective tariff, and it is vitally interesting to every Pennsylvanian that Republicanism of the stalwart type shall continue in the ascendency. The iron and steel industries of the Keystone state have furnished the material for American warships, many of which have been built by Pennsylvania labor on the banks of the Delaware. The arsenals in Philadelphia, employing many Pennsylvania men and women, are now engaged in furnishing supplies and ammunition for the soldiers and sailors of the United States. It cannot be denied that the prestige of her Republi-ism has given Pennsylvania first consideration at the hands of the Republicans of the nation, and it is essential that there shall be no wavering in the loyalty to the principles or the candidates of Republicanism on the part of Pennsylvanians at this time.

Sought to Ruin House by Altering Lightning Rods.

A unique attempt at arson, and perhaps murder, was made by some secret enemy of W. R. Sims, a wealthy farmer, residing near Columbia Cross Roads, near Troy, Pa., some time during the past week.

Mr Sims owns a splendid home and a fine barn, both of which are prominently located on the elevation. Both house and barn are equipped with lightning rods, which, on several occasions have proved their worth.

Last Frideay Mr. Sims discovered the earth under one of the windows of his house dug up, and an inspection found that a lightning rod which had entered the ground there had been clipped off, and the grounded section removed. The wire attached to the house was bent, and pressed into the wooden sill of the building, showing, the evident intention of the party who cut it to cause ignition of the wood.

Further investigation showed three other wires, two of these on the barn, had been clipped in like manner. Mr. Sims is without any clue or suspicion as to who his enemy is.

Rattles Grow on Dog's Tail.

The newspapers are so full of snake stories that the following told by John Rider, who lives on the mountain south of Coburn, and whose character for truth and veracity we will vouch for, will interest everyone who will take the trouble to read it.

John says that three years ago while he was working near his home his dog was bitten by a rattlesnake. He put linseed oil on the wound and the dog recovered from the bite. Now comes the most peculiar part of the case. Exactly one year after the dog was bitten, a rattle grew on the end of the dog's tail just like the rattle on a rattlesnake; two years after a second rattle appeared; a short time ago a third rattle was added to the two on the dog's tail.

John killed the snake after it had bitten the dog and it had twelve rattles. He thinks that if the dog lives long enough it will get twelve rattles on its tail. Any one can see the dog who will take the trouble to go to John's house.

Quilting Party.

Thursday afternoon about fifty of the lady friends of Mrs. Samuel Irvin Reber and Mrs. F. S. Dunham, met at the Reber home at Howard and quilted two fancy quilts, besides sewing a lot of carpet rags: At the proper time a sumptuous dinner and supper were served, which proves that these ladies understand the culinary department. After supper all departed for their several homes feeling satisfied that they had had a good time.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

DON'T BE WOOZY!

NERO

was a most crafty Roman, but he made one mistake.

He committed suicide at the wrong end of his life,

He should have shuffled off at the beginning.

A great many business men today are committing business suicide at the wrong end of their lives.

They mean well at the start, but drift away from their good resolutions

One means of a long and prosperous business life is to have good printing and stationery.

A business is judged by its reading matter.

THE REPUBLICAN

Job Printing Department is prepared to furnish the best.

Cost is a secondary consideration when you consider the quality—sufficient it is to say our prices are so reasonable that it would be a waste of shoe leather to look further.

It has a distinctiveness all its own—a something that distinguishes it from the common trash of the ordinary shop.

Again we say:

"Don't be Woozy."

Think it over and for your next order, remember the

BRIEF MENTION

Short Items of Local Interest Gathered By The Way Side

—The man who claims to be able to deliver the most votes at an election generally has trouble in locating his own.

—The thirteenth annual picnic of the citizens of Pennsylvania Furnace will be held at Baileyville, Saturday, August 5th.

—When you see a girl picking lint off a young man's coat in public, its a safe bet that her engagement ring is quite new.

—The All Stars defeated the strong Scotia Athletic team in a one sided game Friday afternoon by the score of 28 to 9.

—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Raymond are rejoicing over the arrival of a bouncing baby boy at their home on Sunday evening. Accept our congratulations.

—Messrs. Daniel Gordon and Charles Guisewhite, with their families enjoyed a pleasant outing at Penns Cave Sunday. Coming back, however, they were caught in a rain storm which gave them a good ducking.

—Company B. 5th Regiment N. G. P. returned home Saturday morning on a special train from their ten days outing at Camp J. S. W. Jones, Erie, Pa. The boys report having had a splendid time. They are all very sun burnt but are enjoying good health.

Without loosing a moment's time he took his pocket knife and cut the flesh from about the wound. Hurrying home he secured remedies and saved his life.

—John Roseman Sr., of Gregg township, who has been seriously ill for several weeks, is gradually becoming weaker. He is past eighty-one years of age and is suffering from a complication of diseases. His recovery is little hoped for. The aged gentleman makes his home with his son, Josiah Roseman, on the Brush Valley road, near Penns Cave.

—Jersey Shore will within a few days be able to boast of possessing something that hardly any other town of its size in the State has—all night street car service. This is made possible by the installation of duplicate engines. Heretofore the trolley cars have run continuously with the exception of about one hour, when it was necessary to oil the machinery.

—A Kansas City physician has discovered that high collars worn by women produce cancer of the throat, and the Hopkins "Journal" adds that low-necked dresses produce pneumonia, corsets produce heart disease and shortness of breath, long skirts gather up germs of all infectious diseases, thin soles produce consumption, tight shoes cause the toes to grow together, and looking at bright millinery causes sore eyes. Women should be careful about these things.

—W. E. Meehan, the fish commissioner of the state, through Samuel L. Spyker, Esq., of Huntingdon, recently inspected the ground and the stream of water known as Laurel Run, above Barree, with a view of procuring a site for the location of a fish hatchery. At the last session of the state legislature appropriations were made for the erection of three more hatcheries in the state. Mr. Meehan was delighted with the adaptability of the location and surrounding for a hatchery, and if the land can be purchased, which of course, would only be a few acres, there is but little doubt but that one of the three hatcheries will be located there.

—Wednesday morning the body of an unknown man, first supposed to be a railroad employe, was found a short distance east of Portage. The man was horribly mangled. He has been unconscious ever since he was admitted to the Johnstown hospital; has a fracture at the base of the skull and will likely die. When he arrived his dress indicated that he was not a railroad man and inquiries made confirmed the hospital people's suspicions. They would like to hear from the man's relatives, if he has any. The patient is evidently about twenty-eight or thirty years old; is pock-marked, and wears no beard or mustache. His clothes would indicate that he is a working man though not a railroader. He has dark hair.

—The peach crop is saved. That important question has been solved by information from the peach belt, which is to the effect that it has been necessary to remove half grown peaches from the trees so that the remainder of the crop may see the sun and ripen —Few boys and girls may know that other days of the week than the first are being observed as Sunday by some nation or other. The Greeks observe Monday, the Persians Tuesday, the Assyrians Wednesday, the Egyptians Thursday, the Turks Friday, the Jews Saturday and the Christians Sunday. Thus a perpetual Sabbath is being celebrated on earth.

—Charles Ginter, employed at Lingle's foundry had his left hand badly smashed one day last week. He was wheeling a large casting from one part of the room to another when it slipped and fell catching his hand and crushing it till the flesh on the fingers bursted open, though no bones were broken. —James A. Williams, of Beech Creek the barber, came near bleeding to death Tuesday night. During the night he scratched his leg above the ankle, and a sharp finger nail cut a blood vessel and the blood squirted out in a stream Mr. Williams did not discover it in the dark for some time, feeling nothing of it, but a slight sound of the escaping blood attracted his attention Leaving a trail of blood he went to neighbors and had them summon a physician His bedroom showed how much blood he lost He was considerably weakened, but is again able to get around. —Ex-Representative Funston must have used awful language in Kansas to have been arrested for "inflamatory utterences." Kansas had already heard of Jerome, LaFollette and Lawson without going for her gag or handcuffs.

—The sixty fourth birthday of ex-Treasurer D. C. Keller was properly celebrated at his home last Tuesday evening. Mr. Keller was not aware of the "doings" until the guests began arriving, but was equal to the occasion. There were some forty present to do honor to the host.

—John D. Rockefeller is charged with having given the pastor of his church in Cleveland a basketful of potatoes, each of which concealed a $5 gold piece. If any of our arrearaged subscribers have any of these "doctored" potatoes on hand, we will take a car load or two at the market price and never say a word.

—A team of horses belonging to I. J. Zubler, of near Spring Mills, while hitched to a binder ran away, cutting a swath diagonally across the wheat field. Before reaching the bars the machine was wrecked to such an extent that Mr Zubler was obliged to buy a new binder to finish cutting his crop.

—For fishing on Sunday a New Castle boy was arrested and fined $25 and costs, a total of nearly $33. Friends of the boy made up the amount for him to prevent his being sent to jail. Half of the fine went to the informant. There are some ways of acquiring money which are infinitely meaner than stealing.

—Greatness, we are informed, comes to men in different ways. Some are born with it, others achieve it, while still others have it thrust upon them. We have no instances at hand, however, where men have bought greatness. The little flurry that men make with their money acquires reputation for them, but not greatness.

—A grain of corn was removed from the windpipe of a two-year-old boy at Shamokin, a few days ago, by a hospital surgeon. It was the first operation of the kind ever performed. The windpipe was cut open and sixteen stitches employed to sew it up. A dozen stitches were necessary to sew up the neck. The child recoved rapidly.

Rumberger, of Chester Hill arose to put up a window to let a little more air into the bedroom, and it being dark, she unfortunately fell down the stairs, sustaining very serious injuries. —"Now and then I hear an old soldier bragging how cool he was in his first fight," said the one armed man, "and I always have a dim suspicion that his case was like my own. I had determined to be very cool at every cost and so far as I could tell I fired away 40 rounds, killed at least ten of the enemy and had begun to brag a little after the thing was all over, when the captain of my company showed me that I had loaded my musket ten times and not fired and in a fatherly way observed to me: "Abe, I can forgive you this once for running and hiding under the baggage wagon, but if you play the trick again I shall have to take official notice of it."

—The Singer Sewing Machine Co., have moved their quarters from the room in Edward Brown's building on Bishop street to the room on the opposite side of the street in the James I. McClure block. This is a large and commodious room well lighted and just the place for this growing agency. The business is in charge of S. P. Johnson, a very gentlemanly young man, who is about to move his family here from Williamsport. He is a thorough business man as is evidenced by the fact that the company have placed Centre county in his charge and all the other agents must report to him instead of to Williamsport as heretofore. He is assisted in the store by Miss Annie Longwell, of Bellefonte, who makes a very pleasant and capable assistant. We welcome Mr. Johnson and his family to Bellefonte and hope their stay here will be a long, pleasant and prosperous one.
